Testimony Varies on Bicycle Lanes Issue on Cherrywood

by Betsy Likowski

Should there be bicycle lanes along Cherrywood Lane near Springhill Lake, Metro and the Capital Office Park? If so how should they be brought into being? Suggestions include: cutting in half the number of lanes in the street, eliminating all or half the parking near Springhill Lake apartments, and changing the width of the lanes.

On Monday, May 13 at a regular city council meeting, several dozen people interested in this issue came and many spoke. This discussion was only the first step in the process of making the decision for or against bike lanes. That night councilmembers decided to hold a worksession in the near future on this issue so all interested people can come and speak their concerns.

The Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition would like to see bicycle lanes along Cherrywood Lane. The city's Bicycle Task Force and the Advisory Planning Board have both endorsed this proposal, but it is up to the city council to decide. Cherrywood Lane runs from Greenbelt Road to Kenilworth Avenue. Along it are the Giant Supermarket, Springhill Lake apartments, the Greenbelt Metro Station, Capital Office Park and the U. S. District Courthouse.

How many cars and bikes?

One question is how many cars and bicycles use Cherrywood Lane. Bill Clarke, a member of both the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition and the Advisory Planning Board (APB), cited traffic studies. On U.S.

Route 1, 56,000 cars travel each day. In Greenbelt, 10,500 cars use Crescent Road every day and 7,000 use Cherrywood Lane.

Clarke also did a count of bicycles using Cherrywood Lane one day last summer at the bridge over the Beltway. From 7 - 9 a.m. one bicycle traveled from the west and four from the east. From 4 - 6 p.m. three bicycles traveled from the west and five from the east.

A traffic consulting firm, The Traffic Group, which was hired by Capital Office Park, studied Cherrywood Lane traffic near Capital Office Park in late April. During a six hour period on a Saturday, 24 bicycles rode by and during a six hour period on Sunday, 35. Counts were also done on two weekdays earlier that week of two-hour periods during morning rush hour, lunch hour, and afternoon rush hour, finding figures respectively of 3, 2, 9, 0, 3 and 11 bicycles using Cherrywood Lane.

The Options

At the council meeting Celia Wilson, Planning and Community Development Director, pointed out that this is not a simple matter of bicycles versus development but rather concerns the future of Greenbelt West. The city staff has studied the possibility of bicycle lanes on Cherrywood Lane. In the course of study other objectives came to be considered, such as reducing traffic speeds, providing safe crossing for pedestrians, improving the appearance of the road, which is a major entrance into Greenbelt, and providing safe bicycle travel.

The city staff presented council with six options that would meet or partially meet these goals, including the first option, which is to do nothing. There are as yet no cost estimates. The second option is to narrow the middle two lanes and widen the two outside lanes to 14 feet so bicycles could travel on them.

Eliminating all parking along Cherrywood Lane next to Springhill Lake is the third option. This would add 12 feet that could be used to build two bicycle lanes or a median strip. This change, she said, would probably make the road easier and safer to cross for pedestrians, beautify the road, and reduce traffic speed. Near the office park, instituting option 2 could accommodate bicycle travel.

Eliminating parking near Springhill Lake on the side of the road closest to the Metro station is the fourth option. This would provide six feet of road width that could be put to another use. Possible uses in-

Two Days of Festivities Honor Greenbelt Day

This weekend the City of Greenbelt will mark the 59th anniversary of its incorporation as a municipality. On June 1, 1937, even before any residents arrived, the Maryland State Legislature established the first council-manager form of government in the state for the new town of Greenbelt. In commemorating this history, festivities are planned beginning Friday evening, May 31 and continuing through Sunday, June 2.

Friday and Saturday highlights include a family moonlight swim at the Aquatic and Fitness Center, food and entertainment at the New Deal Cafe and baseball and softball games. A free moonlight concert at the Municipal Pool will feature the "Chromatics," Eleanor Roosevelt's High School Dixieland Band and "Formula One" from the University of the District of Columbia. The Golden Age Club will sponsor a flea market and the Greenbelt Lions Club invites the public to participate in cleanup at Buddy Attick Park.

On Saturday, the Greenbelt Nursery School and Kindergarten and the Greenbelt Pottery will have tables set up at Roosevelt Center next to the Co-op with information about their programs. At 2 p.m. the Greenbelt Arts Center will present their annual children/youth play. This year the play will be Walter Kerr's "Stardust." The play will be repeated at 2 p.m. Sunday.

At The Legion

On Sunday "Family Day" will take place at the Greenbelt American Legion Post #136 from 1 to 6 p.m. Starting at 1 p.m. the Legion will host a variety of activities. As usual, food and drink will be offered for sale.

The first event will be a variety show featuring young entertainers from Talent Unlimited. Appearing also will be various local beauty pageant winners. At 1:45 p.m. Mayor Antoinette Bram and other members of the Greenbelt City Council will participate in the special Greenbelt Day program, which will also include musical selections by the Greenbelt Concert Band under the direction of Tom Cherrix. Besides these events, children's games, a moon bounce, face painting, clowns and balloons will be on site to entertain the children. Horseshoe and dart tournaments, bingo, another variety show and D J music are also being planned.

The Recycling Advisory Committee and Greenbelt Adult Care Center will offer information about their programs.

Events are free at Family Day, which is co-sponsored by the Greenbelt American Legion post and by the Greenbelt Recreation Department. Proceeds from the sale of food will benefit the Greenbelt Adult Care Center and Eleanor Roosevelt Grad Night festivities. Those attending are encouraged, however, to bring their own blanket.

Education Award Winners Honored by ACE/Council

by Betsy Likowski

Parents, teachers, and friends came out in force and packed the council chambers to cheer on education award winners at the regular city council meeting on Monday, May 13. It was a meeting dominated by the awards and the discussion of bicycle lanes on Cherrywood Lane (for the latter see separate story). A certain amount of tasks was accomplished, such as review of the 1996 legislative season in Annapolis, an anti-scavenging ordinance, and approval of a public works storage building.

The Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) presented the Second Annual Student Awards to students who have made special contributions to the community through their school or in the community at large. The 14 winners from seven Greenbelt schools are: from St. Hugh's: Joseph Crossed and Sherri Hartwick; from Greenbelt Elementary: Micah Bobo and Shannon Jones; from Magnolia Elementary: Nathan Prince and Disha Jain;

from Springhill Lake Elementary: Carlos Oliva and Zahra Kasim; from Greenbelt Middle: Ulysses Lewis and Stephanie Lewis; from Robert Goddard Middle: Jamaal Snowden and Naomi Kamara; and from Eleanor Roosevelt: Jason Kenworthy and Corita Jones.

Legislation

Three of the four representatives for Greenbelt in the state house presented a review of legislation passed during this year's session which finished up last month. The defining issue of the session, said Senator Leo Green, was state funding was the lowest since the depression. This is a sign of the future, he continued. Good news for some Greenbelt voters - the precinct three polling place has moved from St. Hugh's school to the Greenbelt Community Center.

It seemed that the stadiums took up a lot of time said Delegate Joan Pitkin, but a lot of good work was done. Medicaid and welfare were reformed. And there was a "sea change" in state government by eliminating agencies and stream-lining personnel. And $500,000 was found for the Belt Woods, she said. Delegate James Hubbard continued the review saying that 1800 acres were added to the wild lands, the most protected acreage in the state.

City Business

An anti-scavenging ordinance was passed by council that will apply only to materials that are part of the city's recycling program. This will make it illegal in the city to take recyclable materials from bins placed out for curbside pick-up or recycling receptacles placed out by the city.

A new storage building for the Public Works Department was approved. The lowest bid on the project, $112,200 from Construction Commercial, Inc., was accepted. Labor Day Festival booths and landscaping equipment will be some of the items stored in this building.

The council approved holding a public hearing on the idea of a dog park. The proposed site is on Hanover Drive with a possible alternate site on Springhill Lake golf course. The fenced in park will be run by regulations.

Community Groups

Reduction of rent for the New Deal Cafe was approved. The Cafe operates in the Community Center on weekend evenings. Currently they pay $50 a night and a personnel fee of $10 an hour between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. They estimate they lose $5 a night. Council agreed to waive their personnel fee.

Some of the many recreational and cultural groups active in the city receive financial assistance from the city. Referred to as contribution organizations, these groups follow certain steps every year to receive these funds, including meeting with the council at budget time. An increasing number of groups are seeking recognition as a contribution organization, some without seeking financial assistance, so council asked its Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) to draw up criteria for such groups. Council accepted PRAB's criteria at this council meeting.

Council also accepted both the Greenbelt Visual Arts Coalition and the Greenbelt Writers Group (GWG) as contribution organizations. Both groups noted that their desire for this status was motivated at least in part by their desire for free meeting space in the Community Center. And the GWG can use office space in the Center.

Criminals Beware

Tell us something we don't already know. James Giese's conclusion that "if you want to live in a low crime community, Greenbelt is not the best place to live" (May 23 issue) may be correct. However, a more interesting finding in the statistics on crime would be "for criminals, Greenbelt is the worst place to operate." Crimes are "cleared by arrests" 24% of the time in Greenbelt, and that's the best arrest rate of any county, or municipality in the entire region. Something is working very well here, and the News Review shouldn't miss that story.

Outdoor Volunteers

Clearwater Nature Center, part of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, is looking for volunteers, ages 13 years and older, to assist with a wide variety of outdoor tasks.

Volunteers are especially needed to help the bluebirds and the smallest falcon, the American Kestrel. Adult and youth volunteers are requested for a few hours a day, a few days a month, to hike a trail and check bluebird and kestrel nesting boxes. See all the stages of the life of a bluebird or kestrel and help their population grow. Training will be provided.

For more information or to volunteer, contact the Prince George's Voluntary Action Center, Inc. at 699-2800.

No to GHI Homes Interior Inspections

Attentive readers of the News Review of May 16 may have noticed that one of the questions asked of candidates for the GHI board concerned interior inspections of GHI homes. The responses of the candidates were varied. Since this is an issue that might arise in the course of the next year, I would like to express my opinion on it.

I am opposed to the concept of interior inspections for the following reasons. 1. They are not needed. If GHI has successfully gotten along without them for over 40 years, why are they suddenly needed now? Is there a genuine problem which has arisen for which interior inspections are the solution? 2. I can think of few things more likely to alienate GHI members from the board and staff. An interior inspection is necessarily intrusive and would necessarily be to some extent subjective. 3. I think that it is likely to drive away prospective members from considering buying GHI homes. For better or worse, there is a strong streak in many Americans that bristles at the notion of excessive interference by governmental or quasi-governmental bodies. I cannot imagine many people looking forward to having the inside of their homes inspected once a year. I have enthusiastically recommended GHI to numerous friends and fellow workers ever since moving here in 1986. If interior inspections are instituted, I, for one, would have to considerably temper my endorsement of life in GHI.

If many other GHI members have the same opinion as I do, I suggest that they make known their views to the board.

Yes to Parking Plan

I am writing to express my support for the Roosevelt Center/Community Center Parking and Traffic Management Plans submitted to the Roosevelt Center Merchants and Community Center users by Celia Wilson on May 21.

I understand that this plan will come before City Council on June 10. I encourage the council to direct staff to proceed with this plan.

I was especially pleased to see that staff recommends changing the parking restrictions for the half hour parking adjacent to the Post Office from all hours to ending at 8 p.m. This will be very helpful to the Greenbelt Arts Center. Perhaps, in addition to the time change, the restriction could be changed from all days to Monday through Saturday in order to further coincide the restriction with when the Post Office lobby is open.

Polling Place Change

The Board of Supervisors of Elections at its May 13th meeting voted unanimously to change the polling place in Precinct 21-3 from St. Hugh's Elementary School to the Greenbelt Community Center, 15 Crescent Road. The gym will be the polling room with the entrance through the door closest to the elevator and the parking lot.

Individual notices will be sent to all registered voters in May informing them that the polling location has been changed and will be used for all Federal, State, and County elections, beginning with the November 5, 1996, presidential general election.

The Board extended special thanks to St. Hugh's Elementary School for making its school available to the citizens of Greenbelt over the years.

OBITUARIES

Clifton D. Cunningham

The Rev. Clifton D. Cunningham, 82, who died May 25, was memorialized in a service this past Tuesday at Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church, where he served as pastor in the 1970s.

Born in Pleasants County, W. Va., in July 1913, he received his undergraduate degree from Marietta College in Ohio, and his Masters of Theology degree at a Methodist Theological Seminary in Westminster, Md.

Married in 1939 to Mary E. Smith, Cunningham pastored in West Virginia from 1942 to 1949. The family, which included two sons, lived in Maryland thereafter, coming to Greenbelt in 1965.

Pastor Cunningham served at Mowatt from 1970 until he retired in 1979. In 1993, the couple moved to the Asbury Methodist Village in Gaithersburg; Mary Cunningham will continue to reside there.

An avid reader, Cunningham amassed a vast library. After moving to Asbury Village, he donated hundreds of books to the newly opened used bookstore in the Greenbelt Branch of the County library system. As Mowatt's pastor, he was a strong advocate for Bible study groups and church choral groups. He also led the fundraising campaign to build a new sanctuary. The church, at 40 Ridge Road, was completed in 1981.

Besides his wife of 57 years, he leaves son Michael, of Greenbelt. Another son, Dennis, died in 1974. Three sisters, Wanda Carpenter, Opal Wingrove and Annamarie Henry also survive him, as do three grandsons (children of Dennis) and three great-grandchildren.

At the memorial service, the congregation sang Pastor Cunningham's favorite hymns, and individuals gave public testimony to his influence in their lives.

Expressions of gratitude for the life of the Rev. Cunningham may be made in the form of donations to Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church or the American Diabetes Foundation.

Volunteers Needed

The Prince George's County Department of Family Services, RSVP Program, is in need of someone to help coordinate the activities of one or more projects under the RSVP program. Someone to assist with filing, data entry, and bulk mailings is also needed. Candidates should possess good communication skills and be willing to be trained in office procedures. PGCC President's Contract Extended

The Board of Trustees of Prince George's Community College announces the extension of President Dr. Robert I. Bickford's contract through 1999. Earlier the Board had indicated that his contract would not be approved. Petitions supporting Bickford were circulated by senior citizens attending the college and its satellites.

The college - a comprehensive public, postsecondary institution - awards associate degrees, as well as certificates and letters of recognition in credit and noncredit continuing education programs. More than 30,000 county residents take classes at PGCC each year.

Ground will be broken this fall on a new $10 million comprehensive science and technology center providing residents with new learning opportunities in the sciences, engineering, computers and other technologies.

Library Gallery

The Gallery of the Prince George's County Memorial Library System presents "Content Under Pressure" by Bradley J. Rudich whose mixed media works use images from advertising, fashion and mass media to provoke his viewers out of cultural complacency.

The show will be on display through June 21. The public is invited to the opening reception to be held on Saturday, June 1, 3-5 p.m.

The Gallery is in the Greenbelt Branch Library, 11 Crescent Road. Gallery Hours are Mon.-Wed., 2-5 and 6:30-9 p.m.; Thurs.-Sat., 2-5 p.m.

BIKE LANES

clude: a median strip, a bike lane on the non-parking side or wide outside lanes on both sides of the street.

Reducing the width of Cherrywood Lane to one lane in each direction is the fifth option. This would mean 24 feet in width for bicycle lanes on both sides and a continuous median strip. Crossing the street could be safer for pedestrians, as only one lane would have to be crossed in each direction and there would be a median strip to stand on. Traffic speeds should decrease, Wilson said, but traffic delays should increase.

The sixth option is to implement option five only along the section of Cherrywood Lane near Springhill Lake. Wide curb lanes would provide bicycle access for the rest of Cherrywood Lane.

Citizen Response

Dozens of citizens were present at the council meeting and a number spoke in favor of bicycle lanes on Cherrywood Lane and other issues affecting cyclists and pedestrians in that area. Steve Harper, chair of the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition, said that Cherrywood Lane is a critical connecting point for several bike trails and that citizens have spoken for them in both petitions and elections. This issue is not just about bicycle lanes, Harper added; it is also about the Greenbelt heritage, such as pedestrian access and good government. He also said that citizens do not want a road with more carrying capacity than Crescent Road.

Bob Auerbach of the Greenbelt Greens hoped that council will be in favor of more paths for bikes and pedestrians.

Perhaps test lanes could be put up while planning for the long run is done, suggested Oscar Savaryn. He and others spoke of the difficult paths near the Metro station. I'd like to see paths on both sides of the Metro access road, he said, because sometimes the wind blows the exhaust fumes toward users of the current path. A diagonal path is needed across the Metro parking lot, he continued.

Christopher Cherry concurred. He noted that the path takes the long way around the perimeter. And he noted that some people walk up the road from Springhill Lake, and for them Cherrywood Lane is a residential street. (Council has included in the past a trail from Metro to Cherrywood Lane crossing the property owned by A.H. Smith in the Trails Master Plan, July 25, 1994, however the city does not have funding or right-of-way to construct this trail.)

Response of the Neighbors

The neighbors of Cherrywood Lane spoke against diminishing the size of Cherrywood Lane to accommodate bicycle lanes.

Metro officials are against reduction of traffic lanes since all local traffic gets to the station via Cherrywood, including cars and all six bus routes that serve the station. Metro expects a significant increase in usage of the Greenbelt station when the green line is completed in 1999 permitting riders to go directly downtown without having to transfer.

Springhill Lake management told city staff that they would not like to lose parking on their side of Cherrywood Lane.

Judge Alexander Williams, Jr. and the Clerk of the Court presented concerns of the U.S. District Court. While approving of the goals that motivated the proposed bicycle lanes, Williams said he was very concerned about reducing the amount of traffic that could be carried by Cherrywood Lane. The courthouse is at capacity and will very probably grow, said Williams.

Across the road from the Springhill Lake apartments is a large, mature stand of woods and forested wetland. This property is part of 160 acres owned by A.H. Smith Associates. Their attorney, Nancy Slepicka of the firm of Fossett and Brugger, was present. She said that while they support the goals of the APB report, they are concerned about the possibility of Cherrywood Lane being reduced from four lanes to two.

In the process of planning the development of the property, said Slepicka, they are following the Master Plan for Langley Park, College Park and Greenbelt. Among other goals the master plan sees the need for high quality employment opportunities, especially near the Beltway, and development accessible to public transportation sites, such as the Greenbelt Metro station, she continued.

Slepicka also represents, and spoke for, Capital Office Park, which opposes reducing Cherrywood Lane to two traffic lanes. While not against bicycle lanes per se, they note that Cherrywood Lane carries traffic between two state roads and was built to hold all the future traffic on that road. The development of three more parcels of land in Capital Office Park will increase the traffic on the area roads.

My Greenbelt: A Writer's Cocoon

by Robert T. Levine

After living a long time within the frame of a certain lace's features, one cannot help but be framed by those features. Thoreau had Concord, Joyce had Dublin, I have Greenbelt. I grew up in Greenbelt, and Greenbelt has contributed much to my writing, both to its content and its development. As my own Greenbelt Day tribute, I have taken stock of what Greenbelt has given me as a writer.

I found myself in Greenbelt when my imagination was heightening and my perception was sharpening; I explored its nooks and came to know the landscape. I came to know how the lush limbs of junipers growing alongside the rowhouses would caress the walls whose thinning paint confessed to the brickwork beneath. I came to know the green spaces at the heart of each block in which exuberant sunlight could mingle among the leaves with calm shade. I came to know the concrete walkways which spilled from between the rows of houses and curved along hill-sides to plunge through the underpasses and arise at the pristine white storefronts of the Center. I came to know, too, the ducks floating on the rippling surface of Greenbelt Lake, tilting, ballet-like, perpendicular to the surface and submerging their heads for moments at a time to pull up a few strands of algae. I came to know how portions of the Green Belt are carpeted with the velvet of ferns and coral-like colonies of club moss. I have placed Greenbelt in my mind. I can call it my own, because I carry it inside me, and I can call it forth - in thoughts, or words, in prose or verse - anytime I want.

As a child, the public library was the hub of my recreational life. In time, the richness and magnitude of all those shelves upon shelves of books dawned on me. Everything begged to be checked out and everything could be checked out: all I had to do was keep a white card in my pocket and I could carry home as many ways of seeing the world as my arms could wrap around.

When I began to write down my own way of seeing the world, I had another resource to turn to - my neighbor, the artist. I appear sporadically on his porch with a sheaf of typed pages in my hand for him to mull over and comment on. On summer evenings, we sit on his screened-in porch, discussing, debating, joking, laughing in our wire-mesh nest as the late hour tints the air beneath the sweetgums darker and darker. Though Ben and I work in different media, we share the task of trying to get the world down in our work, and so he is able to discover insights into my writing. Had I grown up in any other place, I might not have had the fortune of living three doors from someone who could tell me "Nothing is abstract; all art is concrete in itself," or "Everything is organic; there's nothing you can put into art that doesn't come from life."

I gained more hands-on training by working for the News Review during high school. Whether I wrote about European students visiting Greenbelt on an exchange program, a club for deaf Greenbelters, or a bomb threat at Eleanor Roosevelt High School during final exams, I had to enter an experience, absorb it, and reproduce it in my article. I had to make the article a conduit between my perception and the reader's imagination. I had to make it long enough, broad enough, and of the right shape to hold the experience. I remember with fondness the old News Review basement office - its dim light, the walls mostly bare except for the electric meters, the constant clacking of manual typewriters. (The News Review hadn't been computerized yet!) A new spirit grew within me in that office, among those mechanical relics of a vanished era - a spirit which met the world and claimed it for its own by wrestling it into language.

Greenbelt has given me a sense of the community of writers through the Greenbelt Writers Group. I felt it first at our organizational meeting in the home of Dorothy Sucher, our "founding mother," in February of last year. A wide ring of 20 people sat in her living room, among them a science writer for the Department of Agriculture and a would-be novelist, a freelance journalist, two writers/editors/publishers of small magazines, a playwright and children's author, and an aspiring fiction writer. How blissful for me, a 20-year-old poet, to sit in that room full of neighbors who not only loved writing but committed themselves to it. Later we held monthly open readings. We would come together to taste one another's work, and in doing so we reminded one another that there was a place for our work, that others cared.

In maps of the city's original plan, the Green Belt looks like a thick shell surrounding it, dividing its obscure outskirts from the clearly ordered land within. But this description is inaccurate; in time, the city punctured the Green Belt and expanded to embrace apartment complexes and town houses, shopping malls and a Metro station. Soon my life, too, driven by the art Greenbelt has given me, will spill beyond Greenbelt to expand itself. Perhaps Greenbelt's boundaries are for me, as they were for the original city, a cocoon - a structure which shelters and nourishes my growth until, enlarged by what it has fed me, I must press against its edges, fall through, and cast my wings.

Something for Everyone At Moonlight Concert

by Konrad Herling

The Greenbelt Arts Center and the City's Department of Recreation are co-sponsoring their seventh annual "Greenbelt Day" or "Moonlight" concert, Saturday, June 1, at 8 p.m. at the Greenbelt Aquatic Fitness Center (outdoor pool). Should it rain, the alternative site will be the Youth Center.

This year's program will feature three groups: The Eleanor Roosevelt High School Dixieland Band, Formula 1 (a jazz band), and The Chromatics (an a cappella mixed voice ensemble). The three groups will play approximately a half-hour each. This year's MC will be Rachel Petty, Miss Greenbelt, 1995-1996.

Roosevelt's Dixieland Band participated in an international competition in London this past April and took away top awards. They appeared two years ago at the Arts Center and drew rave reviews. The Band's appearance at Greenbelt Day was arranged by Sally Wagner, Band Director at ERHS.

Formula 1 consists of a trio of students from the University of the District of Columbia. Jamaal Ellis on the flute, Allen Johnson, pianist, and Debra Ellis, vocalist, have performed either jointly or as duos or individually at Blues Alley, Bolling Air Force Base, the Smithsonian, the National Theater, and Democratic Party fundraisers. They also perform at senior housing centers and other facilities for those who don't have easy access to cultural activities. All three are members of the UDC Jazz Lab Band.

The Chromatics were formed in 1993 by a group consisting mostly of NASA (Goddard Space Flight Center) employees. The mixed voice a cappella ensemble made up of ten men and women: Padi Boyd, Deb Nixon, Karen Smale, Alan Smale, Lisa Kelleher, Steven Leet, Angie Russo, John Meyer, Paul Kolb, and Ian Richardson. The group has performed at Camden Yards, the Kennedy Center, Prince George's Stadium, Children's Hospital, and Greenbelt's New Deal Cafe. For the next year, the Chromatics will be street performers at Baltimore's Inner Harbor. Their repertoire runs the gamut from doo-wop and a cappella classics through modern pop and rock, comedy to classical, madrigals, and patriotic tunes. So there's something for everyone. As usual, the concert is free and refreshments can be purchased beginning at 6 p.m. Also, as usual, Ken Voigt will be supplying the sound and technical assistance to make this event an enjoyable one. Please don't forget to bring your lawn chairs so you can enjoy the performances in comfort.

Youths Offer "Stardust" At Weekend Celebration

by Barbara Likowski

Ever have stardust in your eyes? Crave to bring out your artistic talent? Ever been sure that if you worked hard enough at your favorite art form you would be a star? That's what the play "Stardust" by Walter Kerr is all about. And then some. It's a creative spoof on artists in every genre and it's very funny.

We were privileged to attend the dress rehearsal of "Stardust" at the Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC). This is the 1996 Children/Youth play, traditionally given as part of the Greenbelt Day weekend activities.

The play takes place at the Academy of Drama and Allied Arts. What passes for art is sure to amuse even those youngsters who don't really understand the play, while older family members will chuckle at the tongue in cheek portrayal of the "artiste." Some of it's gauche; it's meant to be.

The cast were all good. But, of course, some were older and had had more practice. We're sorry there isn't time nor space to name everyone. We wish we could.

Laura Fisher as Ms. Bach, was exceptional as the nutty, self-centered director of the Academy. She played a woman whose decisions were the final word to all. We found ourselves laughing heartily and wondering what she would say or do next.

Heather Norden also made us sit up and listen. Her acting was very good of a star-crossed lover and actress whose acting, unlike her real life acting, was terrible! Of course she didn't realize this and was ready to leave her artist boyfriend, played by Isaac Rehner, for Hollywood. Heather made us see the two sides of this mixed up young person and we felt empathy for both. Isaac was a good match for Heather. Ryan Otero really was a stuffy, unimaginative Wall Street executive who wanted to marry actress Kateri Hull on his terms.

We loved them all, young and older alike. We laughed at them all, even those who didn't have an obvious reason for our laughter. There was always that vague feeling that we knew someone who talked or acted like that and it tickled us. Whether lying prone playing a sliced orange or pretending to be a fishing pole that didn't catch any fish, or as squirming tadpoles, the young actors caught our attention. We giggled at lines from director Laura such as "We will begin with emotional patterns of lines and space" or "first establish psychological tones" and "Whom is the groom?"

Director Virginia Zanner connects well with these young people and helps them to bring out their very best.

There were missed lines but as Zanner said there had had to be late cast changes. We believe these kids will get it together. There are three more practices to go. We wouldn't expect there to be many missed lines by then. But we hope the audiences will be patient and understanding of these young people who are giving it their all at one of the most busy times of the year for them. We can honestly say that we didn't find this to diminish our enjoyment. But then there was also so much fun and laughter and yes, stereotyping, the kind that made us look inward just a bit, but mostly made us grin.

Acting, however, was not all these young people did. We were amazed to find out that many of them helped at all the behind-the-scenes, technical, staging and directing jobs. Wow! That is a tall order to fill. But things seemed to be going well. We have to admire this eagerness to learn, not just to perform.

The play will be performed on Saturday and Sunday, June 1 and 2 at 2 p.m. Enjoy!

New Metro Maps Available

As a new service to customers, Metro has produced neighborhood maps showing the streets and major sites surrounding individual Metrorail stations. Riders need only ask the station manager for a copy.

The 8 1/2" x 11" sheet maps are reproduced from the paperback book, "StationMasters: A Comprehensive Pocket Guide to Metrorail Station Neighborhoods." A Metrorail system map, information on how to pay fares, a description of the One-Day Pass, hours of operation, frequency of service, points of interest near Metrorail stations and helpful numbers are on the reverse side of each sheet map.

The complete "StationMasters" contains detailed maps of each of the 74 neighborhoods served by Metrorail. After June 1, the comprehensive guide will be available for a fee at Metro sales offices at Metro Center at 12th and F Streets, NW, Metro headquarters at 600 Fifth Street, NW, and the Pentagon. Stand for Children Day to Be June 1

Greenbelters from several organizations will join with people representing over 3000 organizations from all across America at a history-making rally on Saturday, June 1 at the Lincoln Memorial. They will gather to celebrate, strengthen and restore their commitment to children, reminding everyone that for America to stand for anything all must "Stand for Children."

The rally will run from 9 a.m. to noon. Featured will be a family forum, information tables and live entertainment near the Lincoln Memorial.

The Children's March to the Lincoln Memorial will start at noon. From 1 to 3 p.m., the 2,000 voice Children's Choir and Interfaith Service will be held. (Everyone is encouraged to travel by Metro.) Nationally known figures, including Marion Wright Edelman, will speak. Edelman is president of the Children's Defense Fund and the inspiration behind the rally.

At the May 20 City Council meeting, Council proclaimed June 1, 1996 as "Stand by Children Day" in the City of Greenbelt and encouraged all citizens to make a commitment to American children.

Edelman's son Jonah and Janet Parker representing Gray Panthers also appeared before Council.

Edelman thanked the Council and mentioned some of the efforts of children throughout the country to attend the rally. At last count 2000 bus loads of participants were expected. "I know June 1 is Greenbelt's birthday, but that comes every year," Edelman said, adding "I urge Greenbelters to attend this very special event."

Parker also thanked Council and reminded those present that Greenbelt has always been in the forefront on behalf of children. "We are proud of all of our children and have been always. All of their achievements are owned by all of us," she said.

For information, call Stand for Children (202) 234-0095 or Esther Webb 474-6890.

In connection with the Stand for Children rally, Maryland members of Bread for the World will be meeting with the staffs of Senator Mikulski, Senator Sarbanes, and Congressman Hoyer, from 1:00 to 3:30 pm on Monday, June 3 on Capitol Hill.

Greenbelters are encouraged to participate in these meetings to discuss their support of childhood nutrition and other domestic programs for children. For further information, please call 345-2032.

Register by Mail For Rec. Classes

Greenbelt residents may now register by mail for Recreation Department classes. (Non-residents may use mail registration beginning June 3.) Forms can be found on page 3 of the summer recreation brochure. Walk-in registration begins June 10.

William Dupree has not let any challenges keep him from his goals. After an industrial accident two years ago, he worked hard to rehabilitate himself. In addition to his responsibilities as a father of two and a full time student, he still manages to contribute significantly to the community. He is currently the president of Lakewood Civic Association. He works with the Greenbelt Lions Club, and volunteers with Girl Scout Troop 1161.

William Dupree has been selected for inclusion in the 1996 Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

Volunteers Needed For Grad Night

Here is Greenbelt's chance to be involved in a great annual tradition - Eleanor Roosevelt's High School Graduation Night all-night party. Parents have been planning the huge party for a year. More than 600 students are graduating from ERHS on June 4 and the party will be held that night.

Although many parents have already volunteered to help, there is still a need for parents and other interested citizens to show the students a great party. Come out and see what a class of great students is really like. Help is needed in a number of activities - starting about 5 p.m. on June 4 with party set-up and decorating. Then from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m., help is needed with food set-up and service, activities, security and clean-up.

To volunteer for any of these activities, call Joanna Weirman, an ERHS parent, at 776-5776.

On Sunday, from 1 to 5 p.m., the artists' studios at the Greenbelt Community Center and the Greenbelt Museum at 10-B Crescent Road will also be open to the public.

Early History

Greenbelt was born in controversy, initially a federal experiment in social engineering designed to provide both low-cost housing in a well-planned community and construction jobs for hundreds of men in the Washington area dislocated by the Great Depression. Like other New Deal programs, it drew criticism as an unprecedented and costly incursion by the federal government into the private market. It was sneeringly referred to by a contemporary reporter for the Washington Post as "Tugwell Town" referring to Rexford G. Tugwell, the Roosevelt administration's chief policy architect of the "greenbelt township" program. At the same time it drew world-wide acclaim from city planners for its innovations in urban design. The Resettlement Administration carefully screened its first residents for good character and compatibility by requiring them to fill out lengthy questionnaires. The greenbelt township program foundered, however, and only three of the more than 20 cities originally envisioned were completed. The federal role in Greenbelt came to an end in 1954 with the sale of the housing stock to the housing cooperative, Greenbelt Homes, Incorporated.

Concert Band Rehearses For Greenbelt Day Show

The Greenbelt Concert Band is a regular participant at city special events. It is next scheduled to give a concert at the Greenbelt Day Family Day on Sunday afternoon, June 2, at the Greenbelt American Legion on Greenbelt Road. The band also performs for patients at a number of hospitals and nursing homes. Band rehearsals are held every Monday evening at the Greenbelt Community Center Multi-purpose Room and persons interested in participating are welcome to come to the rehearsal and talk to Director Tom Cherrix.

Recycling Corner

Now that the curbside recycling program has expanded to include different kinds of paper, recycling in Greenbelt is really easy. Newspaper, magazines, catalogs, junk mail, miscellaneous boxes, telephone books and computer paper can be combined in a paper bag or a permanent container. Remember, however, that large cardboard boxes must be broken down to 2 feet by 2 feet and flattened in order to fit into the collection truck. Be sure to remove any bags or styrofoam pieces. Cereal and cracker boxes or paperboard boxes should be emptied and flattened. Larger boxes should be brought to the Recycling Drop-off Center inside Buddy Attick Park.

Those needing a new yellow recycling bin or an information sheet about the expanded program, may call the City Recycling Coordinator at 474-8308.

James Kelly on the trombone.
